Around this time of year, most of us want to slow down, savour the last weeks of summer and maybe even think of fall. We still want to enjoy the great outdoors, but maybe even without the threat of the next hard freeze. So, here are a few things to think about in the next few months: As we enter fall, we will be at a real advantage

with our delicate flowers. If we harvest them now, they will make the transition to being stored in a cooler environment, and we can enjoy them right into the depths of winter. BULBS - Choose carefully how you use your bulbs. Cut the tops and trim the stems to the right length for your flower arrangements or arrange a small field of paperwhites for the table. Then you can enjoy the beautiful colour and fragrance as they deepen their colour until they fade away. LETTUCE - you can also cut the tops now and place them in a plastic bag in the refrigerator, where the cold will slow down the process of dying. The crisp flavour and colour of the leaves will keep on brightening until the cold temperatures start getting in the way and the plants fade back to a more familiar green colour. PICKLES - Alesia says that if you have your jar of pickles in the refrigerator, they will last longer. You can also store your lemon pickles in ice cube trays and keep them on hand in case you have family or friends who like to enjoy a lemonade on a hot day. You can also try storing your pickles with their heads intact to take advantage of the flavours as well. BREAD - Pears makes a nice change from the more familiar but sometimes less than appealing toasted sandwich breads. OLIVES - Olives are delicious on a platter of marinated seafood, or try them on a cheese platter on a warm, rainy day. But, be sure to get your olives from a good source. Too many olives packed in brine will make your food taste fishy. GRILLED CHEESE - Try fresh-grilled cheese on a cracker or with a salad for a quick lunch or

Customs Declaration questions will help you determine the true cost of your acquisitions. I recently bought a colleague a Christmas gift. I purchased the gift online from a reputable site. The site's website listed the cost, but did not include shipping or tax. In addition, the tax was listed in terms of U.S. dollars only. I decided to write this colleague a note explaining that the cost of the gift was actually less expensive than shown on the site, but I needed to confirm the exact pricing to avoid any surprises when the item arrived. I included my contact information in the note along with a sales slip that showed the price of the gift. I never received a response to my note. Instead, the colleague sent me an email informing me that she is no longer working for the company that sold me the gift. I just received an email this morning from an unsuspecting reader who wrote to warn me about the website with which I originally purchased the gift. He explained that the website's website had all kinds of problems and that the entire order process seemed sketchy. As far as I know, my colleague never received a gift from me. However, the consumer protection officials for the U.S. government have opened an investigation into the website I mentioned.
