Category:Computer softwareInternational Survey of the Factors Affecting and Barriers to the Prescription of Complementary Therapies to Patients Suffering from Cancer. The purpose of this study was to explore the different perceptions of how patients and health care providers perceive the value of complementary and alternative medicine (CAM) therapies, and to identify barriers affecting their prescription in the cancer care setting in the United Kingdom. In accordance with the International Consensus on Complementary and Alternative Medicine clinical practice guidelines, a self-completion online questionnaire and a literature review were used to assess the perceptions of patients, carers and health care professionals (HCPs) at two hospitals in the south of England. The participating patient group was sampled from an oncology outpatient department. A total of 43 patients completed the questionnaire, and 49 HCPs responded to the survey. Respondents were interviewed using semi-structured questionnaires. CAM practitioners reported that patients largely expect a cure, are reluctant to discontinue, and believe that their physician is the most influential decision-maker. Patients also reported that their HCPs were the most important source of information regarding CAM. This was also the view of the HCPs who responded to the survey. Barriers to the prescription of CAM therapies in the cancer care setting included concerns about lack of evidence, prescribing procedures, and patient motivation. The results of the present study showed a discrepancy between what patients and HCPs perceive to be their respective roles in the prescription of CAM. The possible consequences of this are discussed.the trailer" for TEN. i love me some post-apocolyptic stuff. kinda reminds me of the 80s with the movies and music that came out at the time. meh, i'm not a huge fan of the show. but i love the post-apocolyptic stuff. at least the more interesting "Zombies" side of it. with a Z on the other side. haha. @hilla548 much, much better than "Battle Royale". that show is pure trash. Haha, you're right about that one. I had hoped that the 'Z' would be the key to keep around a strong thread-line and so I didn't try to start it at the beginning. From a hundred episodes, I wanted to pick a couple of very good ones and keep them going. I've no idea how it would have worked, but I'm a fan of The Matrix, so I tried
