In my computer file I have three copies of the book Michael Haralambos and Martin Holborn, Sociology Themes and Perspectives, so if I can find a copy in a library, great, otherwise I will have to e-mail you a copy of it myself. I do have a copy of it, but I do not have any off-hand ideas as to how to move between the different copies of it. When printing, I found it almost impossible to print without the copyright or publisher information being thrown away. A: I just found a copy on amazon and bought it. The first 250 pages are free... so save it here if you can't use it now. Good luck! Via Romae Via Romae is a transverse street in Rome. I've been going over the documentation and am clearly missing something. My main problem is this: I've got a unit testing class which is intended to run my tests using a class called "TestCaseRunner". namespace TestRunner { public class TestCaseRunner { [Test] public void IndexTest() { Assert.AreEqual(1, 2); } } } The documentation says that the index test should pass, I'm guessing that isn't the way to write the test. The test runner should be used in the NUnitTest class. namespace WebsiteTests { [TestFixture] public class NUnitTest { [TestCase] public void IndexTest() { Assert.AreEqual(1, 2); } } } If I'm using the test runner, it complains that the index test is in the wrong namespace. If I remove the "TestCase" attribute it complains that there is no such a thing as a TestCase method (though clearly there is). What am I missing? A: When you write NUnitTest, there's a namespace and a class. You should not be specifying the "TestFixture" attribute on the class. The NUnitFixtureAttribute does that. So, just write
